

UNM HEALTH SCIENCES CENTER
Center for Native American Health

SAVE THE DATE

OUTCOMES & STROKE HEALTH CARE IN AMERICAN INDIAN & RURAL POPULATIONS

Saturday, April 14, 2018
Drury Plaza Hotel, Santa Fe, New Mexico

The UNM Center for Native American Health (CNAH) is a partner in the National Institute for Minority Health and Health Disparities (NIMHD) initiative Native-CHART. Native-CHART is an acronym for Native Controlling Hypertension & Risk through Technology.

We are excited to join our Native-CHART efforts with the UNM HSC's Department of Neurosurgery ACCESS program for this 2-day conference, the Native-CHART Symposium will be on the second day. However, all are welcomed to attend both days of the conference.

WHAT CAN YOU EXPECT FROM THE SYMPOSIUM?

This symposium will focus on:

- ▶ Stroke and Stroke Risk Prevalence Among American Indians in the Southwest
- ▶ Traditional Medicine and Stroke
- ▶ UNM HSC ACCESS Telemedicine stroke health care experiences and treatments

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

The conference is recommended for the Native-CHART key stakeholder group, and healthcare providers serving American Indians: community health representatives (CHRs), public health nurses, health educators, physicians, nurses, nurse practitioners, physician's assistants, administrative leadership, policy makers and healthcare insurers. Special interest for emergency medical technicians, emergency medicine physicians, neurologists, intensivists, neuroradiologists and rehabilitation specialists.

REGISTRATION INFORMATION FORTHCOMING

MORE INFORMATION:

Please contact the Center for Native American Health at (505) 272-4100 or hsc-cnah@unm.edu