About the Presenter

Amy Rouse, MD is an assistant professor in the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Science at University of New Mexico. She completed her post-graduate training in pediatrics, adult psychiatry and child and adolescent psychiatry at Brown University in 2019. She is passionate about improving access to evidence-based behavioral health care, and to that aim has co-developed services integrating child psychiatry into outpatient pediatric settings in Rhode Island and New Mexico. She also works clinically on the pediatric consult liaison service at the UNM Children's Hospital, and in the Psychiatric Emergency Service at UNM.

Laura Rombach, MA, LPCC, is a senior program therapist at the University of New Mexico. She currently coordinates and provides training in suicide prevention and behavioral health best practices throughout the state. She is the former project director for Addressing Childhood Trauma through Intervention Outreach and Networking (ACTION), a four-year SAMHSA grant at UNM. She is an independently licensed counselor with extensive experience in behavioral health program development, clinical services and childhood trauma and has worked in a variety of sites specializing in behavioral health care, family programs, adoption and foster care services, and youth residential settings.
